meta(φ) is looking for new members!

meta(φ) offers students not only the opportunity to publish their philosophical texts, but also the chance to gain an insight into the world of scientific and philosophical publishing.

Joining the meta(φ) editorial team means gaining experience in publishing academic papers. If you want to know how a philosophical journal is created, from the selection phase of the texts to the editing and the production of the issue, then you've come to the right place. There is only one mandatory criterion to be part of the editorial team: You are registered at the University of Bern as a philosophy student (Major or Minor) or part of the PLEP program. If you also fulfil most of the following points, all the better:

- You are already in an advanced semester of the Bachelor's programme or in the Master's programme.
- You have already gained experience in writing philosophical texts.
- You have already proofread the work of fellow students or edited other texts.
- You like a broad reading of philosophical topics.
- You like to deal with language and grammar. Especially, we are looking for someone who is stylistically confident in English.

So that you know what to expect, we briefly describe the tasks for the next issue of meta(φ):

- Towards the end of the semester (HS21), we will read the submitted texts and select the best ones.
- During the winter semester break, the selected texts are each edited by two people from the editorial team. The number of texts to be edited can take individual needs into account (e.g. how many texts someone can/wants to edit or in which language this will be done).

- Issue #9 is expected to go into production (layout, design, printing, etc.) in early FS 2021.

We look forward to hearing from you and possibly welcoming you as a new team member. Please send us an email by 31st of October 2021 to metaphi.philo@lists.unibe.ch with a few words about yourself and your motivation.

We wish you a good start into the new semester and hope to see you soon!
